

DECIDE ON LOCATION

Baptist Church Congregation Will Build New Church at High and Howard Avenue.

The congregation of the Baptist church Sunday morning at a business session of the church practically unanimously decided to locate their new church on the Hihler lot on the corner of High street and Howard avenue. The residence on the lot will be moved to the north edge of same, repaired and repainted and will be occupied as a parsonage. The parsonage property on West High street will be sold as will also the present church property on Main street.

The church when completed will be the most modern one in the city. A pipe organ will be installed and chimes will also be put in. The location is considered by many an ideal place for a church. Rev. J. S. Wilson has labored unceasingly for this improvement for several months and to him is due much credit. Plans and specifications will be furnished by architects shortly and work will be started as soon as practicable.

PHEASANTS FOR MONTGOMERY

Montgomery county has been allotted 30 of the imported Ring Neck pheasants which are being distributed throughout the State by State Game & Fish Warden, Quincy Ward. We understand that the pheasants are extremely wild and that it is planned to place several pair with people in various parts of the county who will keep the birds and will release the young birds after hatching. It was feared that the older birds would leave the neighborhood in which they would be placed. Everyone interested in the game birds should do all they possibly can to protect them and report promptly any violation of the law. If these birds are given the proper protection in a few years great sport can be enjoyed by the hunters.

Y. M. C. A. MOVEMENT

A movement was started here last week by the young men, which, it is hoped, will ultimately result in a Y. M. C. A. building in this city. Efforts are being made to get about twenty-five young men to form an organization on the order of the Y. M. C. A., which will lease a large room in the main part of the city, and fit it up with gymnasium, reading room, pool parlor and games, and bath rooms. The movement is gaining and it is believed that the effort will be crowned with success. The spirit of the Y. M. C. A. has gotten a strong hold here and it is believed that with the backing of the good women and the business men of this county, within a year or two one of these large buildings will be dedicated here. The movement is just starting locally, but outside assistance can be secured when it is shown that our people are in earnest.

LET HIM GO TO THE DEVIL

Johnnie and Willie (twins), aged 5, went down to the river and saw the minister baptize quite a few people. Monday while playing in the back yard Johnnie spied a tubfull of water and proposed that they play at baptizing. After dipping the chickens and the pup, they spied the old tom-cat and proceeded to believe in immersion, and after numerous attempts to accomplish the desired feat, and with arms and hands lacerated, the boys decided to effect a compromise.

"What shall we do wif dis cat?" said Johnnie.

Willie answered between sobs, "Sprinkle the nasty beast and let him go to the devil."—Danville Messenger.

TODAY

Nothing more fleeting and illu- sive—nothing so undecided and im- palpable, after, and yet in the un- chartered ocean of an incomprehen- sible eternity all that is really ours— today! The yesterdays are dead— there may never be a tomorrow— only this day remains! Born be- tween heart-beats and as soon bur- ied—blending immeasurable past with infinite future and never merg- ing into either—intangible yet cruel- ly swift shuttle with which Deity perpetuates human life and fashions its wondrous fabric. And every one of these limitless waifs—these eter- nity-ntoms—is the epitoms of a life- time. No man can sny where, or whnt befell, his soul while his senses slept—he wakes to perform his mis- sion, only to seek his couch and again enter the unknown. Today— our only assured heritage while here—how important that we make good use of so much treasure—priceless because it can never be replaced—and the only moment in countless aeons we can claim as our very own. The acme of all philosophy is con- fidence in today—that it is the best day—and that tomorrow will be a better if God is so good. It is this thought which makes the birds sing and the sun to shine—which enno- bles duty and defies duty—which disarms suspicion, cures disap- pointment and heart-burn—banishes sorrow and fashions fate. And holy writ contains no greater truth than "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Mind is dominant—barring the weakness of egotism we become in a great measure what we believe ourselves to be. If you cannot ad- mire and have confidence in your- self, always within reason, others will know, and accept you at your own valuation. And this is espe- cially true as pertains to mental at- titude—nothing so develops new powers and new uses of faculties as mental sunshine. To be happy and content is normal mankind—why else did Deity create a word so bountiful and beautiful and endow us with such capacity for every en- joyment of body and mind? There is great difference in temperament—the which only proves the greater need of those to whom love and laughter are discordant notes. And the sunny life is the influential—al- ways the successful life—the rule has few exceptions as you know. The man who goes to his work with grudging reluctance is a slave—he who is morose and fretful and sees only the seamy side has a dead soul. Discontent breeds pettiness—aye and paresis and paralysis. How much better to smile—remembering the mummy. Let yesterday alone— don't face the wrong way—don't desecrate the resting place of the dead. If have made a mistake, for- get it—nothing worth while was ever built upon useless regret. We have all wrestled with ghosts and goblins grim at grey dawn of the morning after; but when earth to earth is said the healthy mind refuses to longer keep step with the bears. To err is human—only one man ever escaped the scourge of conscience— because immaculate, and therefore to sin immune. Don't look back—and don't dodge. With every error snfely under yesterday's sod, the wise man and woman wipes away the tear and bravely face the front. The lesson has been learned—we know better know—and what avails regret, or gretsome watch beside the grave? Today is the aftermath of yesterday—but it is more impor- tant to remember that tomorrow must be the aftermath of today, the nature and influence of which it lies with you to determine. And it is on- ly the idiot, anyw-y, who eats his heart out for what cannot now be undone. Forget it—what a saving sanctuary is expressed in this flit- sam of the street. Without capacity for forgetfulness most of us as the evening shadows lengthen would suf- fer the tortures of the doubly dam- ned. Through forgetfulness hearts are healed, horrors are softened, crimes absolved—and sanity pre- served. It was infinite wisdom which hung the black curtain of fu- turity—and yet the veil which so mercifully dims the past was an act of far greater intelligence, born of kindness and compassion. Sorrow comes into every life with the bur- rying years—none can hope to es- cape its bereavements and its bright—and without this merciful provi- sion of nature, existence would in- deed be a tragedy—without pros- pect or desire, and given over to earking hopeless grief. And in this do not fail—learn to forgive. What does it all amount to nyway—this fighting and hating of one another? If you cannot love your enemy you can at least leave him to wallow alone in the mire of his malice—if in the wrong nobody knows it so well as he, while your conscience is clear. Don't be an Indian—whose gross instincts and cold-blooded brutality are characteristic of his class—they who never forget be- cause they never forgive. It is as important to forget as to remember—no man who deems himself a nem- esis, treasures up a wrong, nurses an injury and permits ignoble hatred to foster in his heart, can never ex- perience true happiness, or attain wholesome success. He is always a pervert—a creature of petty pre- judice and jaundiced resentment—the which a good God never made. Let go of the depressing and weak- ening grievance—wipe the slate clean each day—see to it that no hatred poisons the mind or clouds the mirror of memory. Forgive and forget!—smile on!—and let yester- day alone!—Exchange.

FRECKLE-FACE

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from The Bassett Drug Company, and a few applica- tions should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds of February and March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.—Adv. 35

1916 CUT OUT

Provisions for a cut out of the 1916 crop of tobacco contained in a tentative pledge, to be submitted to the planters of the State, were considered at Lexington Thursday by the directors of the Tobacco Growers' Association in an all-day session behind closed doors in their offices in the Phoenix Hotel. The pledge will be definitely determined upon at a second meeting of the directorate in Lexington April 8, and then sent broadcast throughout the State for the affiliation in the association through it of the tobacco growers from all districts.

Other sections of the pledge provide that the association shall act as agents to "grade, sell or warehouse" the tobacco of the association membership; shall borrow money on the warehoused tobacco, the amount of 50 per cent of the appraised value to be advanced to the grower, the association to receive for its services an amount not to exceed one-half of one per cent of the sum the tobacco may be sold for.

LET'S ALL GET TOGETHER

Isn't it about time for the people of this community to get a little closer together, and work in a little closer harmony one with the other? A country town and the farming community surrounding it are brothers, and the one cannot succeed without the co-operation and active assistance of the other.

A farming section without its adjacent railroad and market facilities would be a back number—a dead one—with little future ahead. Live farmers would shun it—would have nothing to do with it—for live men create a surplus, and they must have an outlet for that which they create.

A farm adjacent to some live town and shipping facilities is worth double that of a piece of ground of equal fertility located in some obscure section of the country. The relative values of the products of the two farms would be about the same—the one high, the other low. Therefore, the farming community is dependent upon the town and its advantages for much of the rural prosperity, for the high value of land, for the ease with which products are made.

Farmers who believe in themselves, who want a prosperous community, should encourage the town and its industries—should buy from the home dealers, should KEEP THE MONEY IN THE HOME COMMUNITY, where it adds to the commercial life of every person.

Every dollar a farmer keeps in circulation at home simply adds that much to the riches of his own community, to the value of his own holdings.

The town and the town merchant owe an equal duty to the farmer, for without his co-operation both town and merchant would perish.

The town should make the farmer welcome, let him feel that he is among friends, that it is HIS town, that he has a personal interest in its welfare.

The merchant should make it possible for the farmer to buy his goods as cheaply at home as he can from some foreign house, and he should keep this fact constantly before the farmer.

He should encourage the farmer by keeping reliable goods and selling them at a reasonable price. Most merchants do this, although the absence of the merchant's advertisement from the local paper keeps the farmer in ignorance of the fact.

He should encourage the farmer in all ways, exhibit a brotherly feeling and spirit, and give the farmer to understand that he is interested in his welfare as well as in the contents of his pocketbook.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly right here in this town that farmers can buy as cheaply from the local dealer as they can from a foreign house.

But the foreign dealer floods the farmer with advertising matter, while some local dealers expect to be taken on faith.

And the farmer is a wise one—he takes nothing on faith.

"Show Me" is his creed. And he goes to the man who advertises—who "shows him."

Now isn't it about time for us all to think a little, to get together, to push this community right up to the front?

A TIMELY PRAYER

A Christian boy was praying. His petition consisted of only one sentence. The prayer, which was repeated over and over again by him, was: "Oh, God, make me real! Oh, God, make me real!" What an appropriate prayer in these days of insincerity, deceit and falsehood! Politics and commercial life and social intercourse are full of lies. Vener is being used by the wholesale! People are not what they seem. Profession often points one way and practice another. Sunday has one kind of religion and weekdays another. A crying need of the age is a religion of genuineness. "Oh, God, make us REAL!"

Would not this be a happy world if everybody lived up to their promises? You meet a man who owes you and you remind him of the debt. He faithfully promises to settle the account at a certain time "as sure as I live!" Time rolls on; he does not put in his appearance, and naturally you must conclude he has "passed away!" But, no, you meet him again after a few months have elapsed, when he renews his promise and—dies again! Verily, verily, this is a great world in which we live! Young Men, listen and take heed—if you owe a dollar and have the money, pay it. If circumstances are such that you haven't the money when demanded, don't make a promise of payment at a certain specified time, unless you know you can do it. Be honest, tell the "whole truth and nothing but the truth," and don't dodge your creditors like an unprincipled wretch. It is bad to be poor, but it is disgraceful to be dishonest!—Lexington Herald.

Mr. John B. McFerran, of Louisville, who has probably done more for the cause of education than any other citizen of our State has consented to write several articles, one of which appears in this issue, upon the subject of rural school consolidation and transportation.

We urge all those interested in this subject to read these articles in order that they may become thoroughly informed upon the subject.

ON THE FIRING LINE.

How the Forces Are Deployed and the Way Battles Are Fought.

The popular idea of a battle line is an array of men standing shoulder to shoulder and many ranks deep. Such, however, is not the reality. The line consists of garisons of varying sizes and separated by intervals of a few hundred yards. These garisons dig themselves into the earth by excavating trenches which they cover with logs and earth to a depth of five or six feet, thus securing protection from shell and rifle fire.

These trenches, when covered, are known as "bombproofs," and the garisons may range in size from one or two companies to a regiment, or even more in important positions. Military experts estimate that the men massed on the first and second firing lines average about two to the yard, or about 3,500 to the mile.

The outposts are so arranged that one supports another, and the open spaces between are covered by rifle fire. Back of the first line, at varying distances, is the second or supporting line, which is also sheltered in trenches and bombproofs. From this line re-enforcements can be moved rapidly to points where battle pressure is strongest. In the rear of the second line, say a mile or less, field artillery is placed to hurl shells and shrapnel over the heads of the infantry into the positions of the enemy, which are generally invisible to the artillerymen.

The selection of vantage points for the artillery is of immense importance, and as it is in danger only from artillery on the other side every effort is made to conceal it, advantage being taken of wooded spots and hillsides. The observers who give the range to the battery are posted at some distance and communicate with the gunners by means of field telephones.

Reserve infantry is usually posted in the rear of artillery, but cannot be used effectively if it is more than two or three miles from the first line of fire, as it must be hurried quickly to whatever points are yielding under pressure from the enemy. The operations of the cavalry are largely restricted to scouting and screening the advance of the infantry and artillery.—Martin Marshall in Leslie's.

Mexico's Famous Salt Lake.

The salt producing lake near Salinas station, on the Tampico division of the Mexican Central railway, seventy-two miles west of San Luis Potosi, may well be termed a two story lake, for at times there is a lake of fresh water overlying the salt lake. A water tight roof of green mud separates the fresh from the salt water. For a large part of the year there is no fresh water lake there. The sun licks it up soon after the rainy season is over. The salt secured from this lake goes all over Mexico. The lake has been worked about sixty-five years. The whole town of 5,000 people makes its living from the salt.

Fainting.

Fainting is caused by lack of blood in the brain.

The person who faints should be stretched out on the floor or the bed so that the blood may flow to the brain by gravitation, thus relieving the heart which is under great strain during a fainting spell. Heavy wraps should be removed and tight garments loosened. Water sprinkled on the face and the free use of smelling salts and camphor will help to restore consciousness.

A Kindness.

Young Lady—A friend of mine is engaged to a man, and now he refuses to marry her. What would you advise her to do?

Old Lawyer—Is the man wealthy?

Young Lady—No, he hasn't a cent.

Old Lawyer—Then, I'd advise her to write him a nice letter of thanks.—Exchange.

Mean Man.

Nwed—I don't wish to find fault with this soup, my dear, but wouldn't it be well to put some meat flavor in next time?

Mrs. Nuwed—I don't think it very generous in you, Henry, to make fun of my bread pudding in that underhand way.—Chicago News.

Fair Question.

"My long lost brother!" she cried with joy.

"My long lost sister!" he cried with more joy.

"Now, look here," interrupted the surprised witness of the happy reunion, "which of you was it that was lost?"—Exchange.

Har Talent.

"Eve was something of a prestidigitator."

"How so?"

"When she handed Adam the apple she turned it into a lemon for the race."—Baltimore American.

J. H. BRUNNER, The Shoe Man

Athletic News as in Old Greece.

Imagine American boys assembling in relay teams to deliver newspapers! At Kalamata, in Greece, this is the method that obtains for delivering morning newspapers. The main square in Kalamata, where the newspapers are sold, is a full half mile from the railway station. Keen rivalry exists between the carriers of the various papers, and from the moment the train arrives there is a great contest to be the first to place the papers on the stands at the square. Relay teams of newsmen have been organized, and these accomplish the delivery of papers in a little more than two minutes, each member racing with a bundle of papers a short distance and then passing his burden into the hands of the next runner. The race is the subject of much interest among the townspeople, who like the spirit of the boys.—Exchange.

Use All the Teeth.

Paradoxical as it may seem, the teeth employed for chewing present quite a clean appearance, while the unemployed ones are unclean, usually very dirty, writes Dr. John Philip Erwin in Oral Hygiene. People express surprise when informed they are running on one dental cylinder by using only the right or left side of the mouth.

When a father spied his boy using only the upper third of the saw on the log he said: "Son, the entire saw belongs to me. To do good work use it all."

The Creator never would have given man thirty-two teeth if it were possible to operate this intricate human machine successfully with a smaller number.

Dumas' Dramatic Intuition.

A story is told of the elder Dumas which illustrates his remarkable dramatic intuition. An eminent Parisian critic who sat beside him at a first performance noticed that he seemed abstracted.

"You are triste, my master," observed the critic.

"No," replied Dumas, "I'm not bored, but I'm somewhere else than here, so to speak. I am unable to follow any play to the end. I listen eagerly to the first act, and then my mind carries me off into thoughts of the play I would make of it."

The Peacock Throne.

Of all the Persian crown jewels the peacock throne is the most magnificent. It is entirely of silver, a great camp bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is incrustated from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds. At the back is a star of brilliants that makes you blink. The ring on which the shah sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls.

LANGLEY TO RUN

FOR U. S. SENATOR

Representative John W. Langley, of Kentucky, Republican, Monday made it known that he expects to contest with Senator Ollie M. James in the next Senatorial campaign in Kentucky for the toga now worn by the big Kentucky Senator. Langley has been a member of the House of Representatives three terms.

Langley is well known in the mountain districts of Kentucky, especially the Tenth and Eleventh and is thoroughly familiar with customs among the mountaineers and how campaign among them. The next election of a United States Senator in Kentucky will not take place until 1918, so that he has plenty of time to get his defenses in order.

"$235,591,350 is a lot of money."

"Is that the national debt?" "No, but it is the debt that this country paid last year."

"What for?"

"Fires. The fire losses in the United States each year are more than five times as numerous per thousand of population as those of Europe."

"Europe must have better fire-fighting equipment." "On the contrary this country spends more than ten times as much money as Europe on fire departments and other forms of fire protection."

"How can the fire insurance companies stand such fire losses?" "Only ably managed companies with immense resources can. It takes age, able management and nation-wide distribution of liability to succeed."

"Is that so? Wonder what company I'm in."

"Don't you know?"

"Haven't the slightest idea—never gave it any thought."

"Better begin; but if you are insured in Hoffman's Insurance Agency you are protected by the company of which there is no question. They only represent the BEST. That agency has been paying claims for 68 years—has met every honest obligation in that time—and when you think of the fires in only this county for the last century you get a pretty good line on the stability of the Hoffman Agency."

"Premiums high?" "No higher than the others, and you get protection, prompt adjustments and fair treatment."

"Thanks for the tip. I'll Talk With Hoffman" at the first opportunity."

Why Kelly-Springfield Tires cost more to buy but less to own

The stamp of quality is as obvious on Kelly-Springfield Tires as it is on any other hand-made article of genuine worth. It is as inimitable, as unmistakable as the impress of good breeding on a man or woman. But

Kelly-Springfield

Tires are not made so carefully merely to give them an air of distinction; it is mileage that is built into them so slowly and painstakingly by hand. And judged by the acid test of road mileage, Kelly-Springfield Tires are as good as they look. They are built up to a standard—not down to a price-list.

Made to Make Good

Hereafter the basis of adjustment will be:

In Ford sizes, plain tread, 6,000 miles; Kant Slip 7,500 miles. All other sizes, plain tread, 5,000 miles; Kant Slip tread 6,000 miles. The word "adjust" is merely figurative, because in 1914 the total adjustment in Kelly-Springfield Tires for the whole United States was less than 1%. You get this unequalled service in uninterrupted mileage—not adjustment.

Before buying some other tire at a lower price analyze the basis of adjustment offered by the other maker—see what you really do get for less money.

Woman So Weak and Nervous Could Not Stand Her Children Near Her—Vinol Changed Everything for Her

Plant City, Fla.—"I wish I could tell everybody about Vinol. For nine years I was in bad health. I got so I could not sleep, and I could not stand it to have my children come near me. I could not even sew or do any heavy housework. I was simply tired all the time. I tried so many medicines I could not recall them all, but nothing did me any good. One day a friend asked me to try Vinol and said it was the best tonic she ever saw. I did so, and soon got the first good night's sleep I had had for a long time. Now I sleep well, my appetite is good, my nervousness is all gone and I am so strong and well I do all my housework and work in my flower garden without feeling tired or nervous. Vinol has made me a well and happy woman."

MR. A. O. STANLEY

The first trial of a half hundred men indicted by the Federal grand jury for defrauding in an election held at Terre Haute, Ind., last November, is on at Indianapolis. Our own ex-congressman and candidate for Governor, A. Owsley Stanley, is the chief counsel for the men indicted. The writer, who has been in the Hoosierdom for some ten days, did not hear favorable comment of Mr. Owsley's conduct of the cases, and the impression prevails around Indianapolis that the fellows on trial could have procured counsel nearer home and fared no worse than the prospects are that they will with the gallant Stanley as their Moses. The trial judge is having a peck of fun at the Kentuckian's expense and has been unkind enough to intimate more than once that he has not the knowledge of the law that the fellows of Blackstone who tackle such cases as these now on trial should have. The chances are that those indicted will get the limit of the law.—Interior Journal.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ALL IS NOT SERENE

When the skies seemed clear and the seas smooth what must the peppy Republicans do to Ed Morrow's ensy sail towards the gubernatorial nomination but drop a bomb on it? Ed looked like he had the nomination nailed down, but Leslie Combs, Charles Scholls, George DuRelle and a few other prominent old-line and progressive Republicans held a conference in Louisville last week and let it be known that there will be no flapping together of the Radical wings if Morrow is allowed to lead the ticket. So serious is the situation that Morrow in a hot card in the Lexington Lender, the Bible of Kentucky Republicanism, read the riot act to Combs and vowed that he would slap him on the wrists if he didn't behave. And so serious does the Lender regard the situation that it must spread a double-column editorial of salve over the Progressives, tell 'em what good fellows they are and plead with them not to put a fly in the delightful Republican ointment.

The whole matter boiled down means a revival of the old fight between the Bradley and the anti-Bradley Republicans in the coming election. Morrow, who is a nephew of the late Senator, is regarded as a chip off the old block, the personification of the Bradley ideas and style of politics, and a lad who is seeking to wrap himself in the late Senator's mantle. The Progressive wing will have none of him. The Progressives did not look very big in the last election, having cast a total of only 14,108 votes in the State. But 8,020 of those votes were concentrated in the city of Louisville, and with that many voters in the metropolis arrayed against Mr. Morrow his chances in the November election would be about as good as the proverbial snow drop in the hotter region. His wail and his attack on Leslie Combs will not strengthen him with the Progressives, and the Leader's plea for harmony is no evidence that the Republican Bible recognizes the gravity of the situation.

We do not believe Morrow can be beaten out of the nomination, and we believe the Progressives will slaughter him in November. So, dear Democratic brethren, while we have troubles of our own and the prospect for a hefty fight in the primary is exceedingly bright, it is well to remember that whatever our party may stir up the Republicans have just a little more trouble in theirs.—Cynthiana Democrat.

BRYAN ON THE

LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Secretary Bryan's speech at the local option meeting in Philadelphia was a slashing tirade of the liquor traffic. Into the arena, before the assembled thousands, the "Commoner" figuratively summoned "John Barleycorn." In an oratorical clinic he dissected the arguments of the liquor advocates and cut them into ribbons with his sharp thrusts. Putting aside bromides and platitudes, Secretary Bryan appealed to his audience on economic lines. "Taxation without representation" was his alignment of the liquor traffic in the light of the new civilization. With a wonderful array of figures Mr. Bryan showed the people of the United States every year spend for liquor twice as much money as that spent for maintenance of the Federal government; three times as much as is spent for education; enough money to pay for six Panama Canals and sufficient to keep going a European war for six weeks.

"And this largest tax of all," he said, "comes out of the pockets of those with the smallest incomes. The nation submits annually to a tax five times as great as it would permit any political party to levy." Shut off the demand for liquor and there will be no sale, was his laconic suggestion for the solution of the liquor problem. Usually a dignified, slow-speaking orator, the Secretary hurled himself into his speech with almost marvelous energy. He waved his arms, stamped his feet and fairly hurled his words at the vast audience in his tenseness of delivery.

THE CONSOLIDATION OF RURAL SCHOOLS

Editor of the Mt. Sterling Advocate,

Dear sir—If agreeable to you I propose in several articles to set before your readers some practical statements concerning the consolidation or centralization of our rural schools. It is not theories I propose to set forth, either of my own or those of some one else. In doing so I simply give the origin and results of a move set on foot by the farmers of Illinois who desired accurate information on the subject before deciding to undertake the establishment of such schools in their own State. Therefore, I shall give largely the facts as set forth in a bulletin issued by the University of Illinois on the subject in 1904. It is only fair to say that since the date of this bulletin the consolidation of county schools in nearly every State of the Union has gone forward by leaps and bounds, notwithstanding they have in every case, when first proposed, met with great opposition; and of the many thousands that have been established in the various States, there is no known abandonment of the plan in a single instance. They have forced their way from Massachusetts to California by reason of sheer merit.

In 1903 the State Farmers' Institute at its annual meeting passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Illinois Farmers' Institute realizes that there is very great need for further improvement in the county schools and whereas, the consolidation or centralization of county schools has been adopted to some extent in several other States, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Agricultural College of the University of Illinois be requested to collect and publish in this State, exact information relating to the method, the difficulties, and the advantages of the consolidation of county schools, especially with reference to the progress and present status of such consolidation where it has been adopted.

"Adopted by the Illinois Farmers' Institute in session at Bloomington, February, 1903."

In response to this request the University of Illinois in January, 1904, issued the first edition of their bulletin which was quickly absorbed, necessitating a second edition which was also soon exhausted.

"Preface to the First Edition."

"Agreeable to the request contained in the resolutions adopted by the Illinois Farmers' Institute at the Bloomington meeting in February, 1903, the College of Agriculture proceeded at once to gather reliable information."

"Letters were sent to all the States of the Union asking what had been done, if anything, and how it had succeeded. Opinions were collected both from professional educators and from farmers who had experienced the workings of the system, all from sources the most diverse. Aside from this, a trusted agent of the Institution visited the region in Ohio where the system had been longest in use, with instructions to note all the conditions found, both favorable and unfavorable.

"The investigation was begun and conducted without bias or previously formed impressions as to the merits or demerits, advantages or disadvantages of this method of administering the school system. As the investigation proceeded, however, the conviction that is inevitable to every one who really studies this question gradually forced itself upon the consciousness and, in spite of efforts to the contrary, the reader will detect its presence in the mind of the writer at the time of putting the data in final form.

"It is therefore the more necessary to assure the reader that this conviction arose during and by virtue of this investigation and that it did not exist in advance; indeed there was no opportunity for pre-existing opinions because the writer had never before given the slightest attention to the details of the subject. (Signed) E. Davenport Dean of Agricultural University of Ill.

"Preface to the Second Edition."

"The unexpected calls for the first edition of this circular soon exhausted the supply and a second edition has become imperative.

"In the meantime conditions have changed. Consolidation of county schools into larger unity has passed the experimental stage, and there is less need than formerly for extended accounts of "opinions." Accordingly much that was printed in the first edition is omitted from the second.

"In the further study of this subject in its application to Illinois, two facts have quite unexpectedly come to the surface: First, that the farmers are in reality supporting a double school system, one at home, by the process of taxation, the other in the nearest village in the form of "tuition," which tuition is generally more than enough to pay the salary of the Superintendent of the entire city school system. The other surprising fact is that of all the arguments as the impossibility of transporting pupils over "bad roads", the facts are that they are being transported now in large numbers, and have been for years, all over the State, often traveling as far as seven miles and back daily, during a high school course. True it is being done at private expense and often for several members of the same family. But it is done, and many vehicles follow each other daily at all seasons and in all kinds of weather, over all the roads of the State leading to high schools, and it well within the facts to state that without a doubt more horses are actually employed in Illinois today in transporting the older children to village high schools, and more are traveled than would be necessary to transport all the children to central schools if the horses were coupled together and hitched to proper vehicles.

"And so it is, the farmer not only supports his own school system, but because it is insufficient he also helps to support that of his city neighbors. Thus he supports a double system of schools, one at public expense and another at private costs, and the transportation that is inevitable under any system that will provide good schools for country children of high school age, he manages in the most costly and inconvenient manner that could be devised.

"The question of county high schools for country children is the largest issue before the farmers of today. The conspicuous lack of these schools is the weakest spot in the agricultural development of the American people, and upon their solution of this matter largely depends the future of the agricultural masses.

"That agriculture needs now more than any other thing is a system of schools that educates country people as successfully as city schools educate city people; a system that trains for life and fits for college without destroying the home or taking the child out of the influences of the favorable conditions under which he was born.

"Good country schools cannot be established within walking distance of each other. Transportation is inherent in any effective system and it is inevitable. It will surely go forward. It is only a question of time and manner. (This prediction is being rapidly fulfilled.) The largest element of doubt and danger is as to what sort of schools we shall have after consolidation. Consolidated country schools do not mean annihilated country schools with the children hauled away to the nearest city to be schooled on the wholesale plan. The thing that should come out of this is a real country school for country children and whether it is located in a small village, at a crossing of the roads, or in some picturesque piece of woodland, it must breathe the atmosphere of country life; it must instill a love for country things, and it must teach in terms of a life that the country child understands.

"The chief concern now is that when consolidation comes, as it surely will, it may result in a system of real country schools doing both elementary and high school work for country children, serving them acceptably until they shall be old enough to go to college when, and not before, they may well sleep under another than a father's roof and eat at another than a father's table."

This article, that may be followed by others, tracing the results of this investigation, it is hoped may be both interesting and profitable to many who are doubtful on the subject of consolidation or centralization of rural schools, and it may be well for these who really care for the advancement of the country children to preserve this article so that they may read them in connected form.

Respectfully submitted,
John B. McFerran.

WHISTLING THROUGH LIFE

This world is full of queer people, and it has been our fortune to hump up against a few of them—to our sorrow.

Most people hereabouts take this paper and PAY FOR IT. They do it not as a duty, but because they know they simply can not get along without their home paper.

The editor NEVER whistles for THEIR money—he GETS IT.

But there is another class—some "class" to 'em, too.

They take the paper regularly—are the first to read it—profit by the many opportunities offered in its columns—and FORGET TO PAY FOR IT.

They just let the editor WHISTLE—and keep on whistling.

If he needs money, he can whistle for it.

If he has bills to meet, he can pay them in whistles.

So far as they are concerned, the editor can go and whistle himself to glory.

Yes, they get the paper, and the editor whistles for his "dough."

But, then, editors are cheerful whistlers and they'll probably find a whistling corner tucked away somewhere in heaven.

CROSSING THE SUN'S FACE.

Transits of the Moon, Venus and the Baby Planet Mercury.

There are only three bodies that can "transit" the sun's face—namely, the moon, which then causes an eclipse of the sun, and the planets Mercury and Venus, whose paths lie within that of the earth.

Usually Mercury and Venus pass the sun a little too high or a little too low, and so avoid making a transit. The last transit of Venus, for example, was in 1882, and there will not be another till 2004, an interval of 122 years; but in 2012 there will be another, only eight years later, as there was also another in 1874, only eight years before the last.

Mercury, on the other hand, makes about thirteen transits in a century, at intervals of from three and a half to thirteen years. Many of these, like eclipses, are visible only from parts of the globe.

Mercury is an interesting planet. It is known as the baby of the sun's family, the little brother of the earth. Against the earth's diameter of 8,000 miles is Mercury's of only 3,000, which makes it one-fourth smaller than Mars and less than half as large again as our moon. Yet when conditions are favorable Mercury is one of the brightest luminaries in the sky.

It sometimes even excels Sirius in brilliancy, brightest of the fixed stars, and among the eight planets attached to our sun, five of which may be seen in the sky, Mercury ranks third, being exceeded only by Venus and Jupiter, and thus outshining both Mars and Saturn.

Mercury always keeps near the sun, as little children keep near their father, and thus he is usually lost in the sun's glory. The reason for this is that he travels the innermost of all the eight concentric paths which the planets follow round about the sun.—New York World.

Ben Franklin's Trick.

Benjamin Franklin once wrote this letter to a man to whom he was lending some money:

"I send you herewith a bill for 10 louis d'ors. I do not pretend to give such a sum; I only lend it to you. When you shall return to your country you cannot fail of getting into some kind of business that will in time enable you to pay all your debts. In that case when you meet with another honest man in similar distress you must pay me by lending this sum to him, enjoining him to discharge the debt by a like operation when he shall be able and shall meet with another opportunity. I hope it may then go through many hands before it meets with a knave to stop its progress. This is a trick of mine for doing a deal of good with little money."

How Khaki Is Dyed.

Khaki is an invention of the Hindus. The word means "earth color." It was at first produced by immersing the cloth in a bath of manure. Other dyes used in India have been burnt chiecy, catechu and diamines. The modern khaki is produced by dyeing in a mixture of oxide of iron and oxide of chromium. It can be obtained by dipping the stuff into a bath of ferrous sulphate and spreading out to dry in the air. In practice the process is more complex, solutions of ferrous sulphate, pyrolignite of iron, acetate of chromium and alum being employed in combination. The tissue takes up a large quantity of the metallic precipitate.

Pleasant For the Landlord.

The neighborhood of Toxeth Park, Liverpool, has decided drawbacks, from the point of view at least of some of the landlords of the cheaper property. It is said that an agent on making the usual Monday morning call for rent at one house was offered 1s. 6d. The rent was already in arrears. He showed his discontent. "Look 'ere, mister, you ought to be jolly thankful you've got this. If my old man hadn't sold the back door you'd have got nothing."

Settled.

An old woman, on being examined before a magistrate as to her place of legal settlement, was asked what reason she had for supposing her husband had a legal settlement in that town.

The old lady said: "He was born and married there, and they buried him there, and if that isn't settling there what is?"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

He Was a Kicker.

"Is dat a kickin' mule?" asked Fra-tus Pinklev.

"Does you want to buy him?" inquired Uncle Rasbury cautiously.

"No."

"Den what's de use o' comin' aroun' here axin' useless questions an' temptin' me to spoil my reputation for truth an' mendacity?"—Washington Star.
